Plaintiff,

V.

INSURANCE ONLY, INC.; MICHAEL WEDEKING, and his marital community; PATRICK WEDEKING, and his marital community,

DECLARATION OF LARRY G.
JOHNSON IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANTS' OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY
JUDGMENT FOR INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

Defendants.

I, Larry G. Johnson, declare as follows:

1. I am over the age of 18 and competent to testify as a witness in this matter. I make the following declaration based on personal knowledge, and on

1 belief and expertise developed over many years as an expert in computer 2 forensics and electronic discovery.

3 2. I am President of e-DataEvidence, a company providing full-
4 services e-discovery consulting and file processing of computer generated data 5 for law firms and corporate counsel, with particular emphasis on e-mails, using 6 best-practices protocols and analytics for distilling relevant digital evidence for 7 use in litigation. Previously, from 2002 to January of 2006, I was the President
8 of Legal Technology Group, Inc., a digital data and electronic discovery 9 consulting firm with offices in Washington and Oregon, and I am a former 10 (2000-2002) Director of Electronic Discovery Services for Fios, Inc., of 11 Portland, Oregon, a company specializing in electronic discovery, digital data
12 processing, computer forensics and analysis. Prior to that, from 1998 to 2000, I 13 worked as a consultant and Case Manager for Computer Forensics, Inc., in 14 Seattle, Washington.

17 3. I have used personal computers extensively since they were first 18 commercially available in the early 1980s and have substantial experience in the 19 use and analysis of the Microsoft Office suite of applications (Word, Excel, 20 Access, Outlook and PowerPoint) and the Microsoft Windows operating system

1 in its various versions. For the past 19 years, I have consulted lawyers regarding 2 the use of computers in litigation, and I have also practiced law as a litigator, 3 having been admitted to the Washington State Bar in 1974, of which I am a 4 member in good standing.

6 4. For the past nine years I have specialized in the areas of electronic 7 discovery and computer forensics. Over the course of a year, I was formally 8 trained in computer forensics techniques and software by Computer Forensics, 9 Inc. in Seattle, Washington, and I have been trained and certified by New 10 Technologies, Inc. (NTI) of Gresham, Oregon, in the recovery and analysis of 11 digital data and the use of computer forensics tools. I have served as the 12 Chairman of the Technology and Law Section of the King County Bar
13 Association (Seattle) and have written extensively on computers and digital data 14 discovery issues in The ABA Journal and numerous other publications. I have 15 also been a frequent speaker at CLE presentations throughout the United States, 16 discussing the use of computers in discovery and litigation. I am co-author with 17 Tom Howe of a three-volume reference work entitled Electronic Discovery

1 Q3 of 2007. I am a graduate of the University of Minnesota (B.A. summa cum 2 laude, J.D. cum laude) and Harvard University (M.A.).

3 5. I have read Omni Innovations, LLC's ("Omni") Motion for Partial 4 Summary Judgment and the Declaration of James S. Gordon, Jr., offered in 5 support of that motion. I have been retained by the law firm of Rettig, Osborne, 6 Forrette, O'Donnell, Iller & Adamson, LLP to provide my analysis and expert 7 opinions regarding not only that motion and declaration, but also the copies of e-8 mails Omni produced to the Defendants in the course of discovery, and upon 9 which Omni bases its case.

10 6. By way of background information, an "e-mail" is a message,
11 usually consisting of text, sent via computer from one person to another at an e-12 mail address. A "domain" in the context of e-mails is the name that appears to 13 the right of the @ sign in an Internet address. Thus, for example, 14 "james@gordonworks.com" is an e-mail address, whereas "gordonworks.com" 15 is the domain that hosts that e-mail account and others. A domain is not the 16 "destination" of a sent e-mail, but simply a repository of destinations, i.e. e-mail 17 accounts, from or to which e-mails are sent.

1 7. A review of publicly available records reveals that Omni is not the 2 owner of at least eight of the 11 domains for which it seeks a permanent 3 injunction. Specifically, only gordonworks.com and itdidnotendright.com are 4 owned by Omni Innovations, LLC. Rcw19190020.com might be owned by 5 Omni Innovations, LLC, because a similar name is shown for the owner. The 6 remaining eight domains for which Omni seeks an injunction, however, are all 7 owned not by Omni, but by individuals who appear likely to be friends or family
8 members of James Gordon.

9 8. I received and reviewed a CD from the law firm of Rettig, Osborne, 10 Forgette, O'Donnell, Iller & Adamson, LLP, that contains six files, only two of 11 which have data: "Insuranceonly - Omni.mbx" and "Insuranceonly.mbx."¹ I 12 was informed by counsel that the CD they provided me is an exact copy of the 13 CD produced by Omni in the course of discovery, which CD allegedly contains 14 e-mails that Omni claims were sent by Insurance Only or procured by Insurance 15 Only.

16 9. These two files of alleged e-mails, "Insuranceonly - Omni.mbx" 17 and "Insuranceonly.mbx," are in a text format that can be read not only by a

21 22 ¹ The four other files are "in.mbx," "out.mbx," "junk.mbx" and "trash.mbx," each of which 23 consisted of 0 kilobytes.

1 software application called Eudora, but by any word processing software as 2 well. These two files do not contain the original e-mails from the e-mail 3 mailboxes of the 52 individual users who own those e-mail accounts. Rather, 4 someone has specially and artificially created these two Eudora-like files by 5 either extracting e-mail information from the 52 users' e-mail accounts and 6 exporting them to these specially manufactured files, or by appending them in a 7 word processor.

9 10. The two Eudora-like files that somebody has created and 10 extraordinarily named as "Insuranceonly - Omni.mbx" and 11 "Insuranceonly.mbx" are not in fact the usually expected exported file names in 12 a normal export of Eudora e-mails from a user's mailbox, i.e., the e-mail 13 "in.mbx," "out.mbx," "junk.mbx" and "trash.mbx" files as found in the mailbox 14 of a typical user. Instead, among the files on the CD produced by Omni, 15 whatever had been in those four usual folders of e-mails for 52 separate 16 mailboxes was removed (or never existed in the first place), showing 0 bytes for 17 the in, out, junk and trash e-mail folders in a directory listing. There is no way of 18 knowing whether the complained-of e-mails were in fact from a given mailbox

1 owner's "out" folder of sent or forwarded e-mails from him or her; from the 2 "junk" or "trash" folders where the e-mails could have been automatically 3 routed rather than ever received by the mailbox owner in the "in" folder, or from 4 the "in" folder of actually received e-mails.

6 11. None of the alleged e-mails in this collection are original e-mails 7 but are, at best, partial artifacts of original e-mails. Based on my review of the 8 e-mails on the CD and those attached to the Gordon Declaration, and my 9 extensive experience in computer forensics, I find no factual basis of any kind 10 upon which to conclude that these e-mails were sent by Insurance Only, nor do I 11 discern in Omni's motion and supporting declaration of Mr. Gordon any facts or 12 analysis to demonstrate that the e-mails were sent by any person or entity that is 13 in some way linked to Insurance Only. On the other hand, my review and 14 analysis do lead me to conclude with a high degree of certainty that the 15 proffered e-mails were not sent by Insurance Only.

17 12. There are 4,186 alleged e-mails on the CD. As indicated above, the 18 alleged e-mails on the CD, to the extent they reflect what might have been 19 original e-mails, have been removed from what appear to be 52 original mailbox

2 environments and, at a minimum, text has been added to them in obvious ways 3 that constitute alterations of what one would expect to see in original e-mail
4 content. There are numerous instances where the text alterations or missing 5 original content are obvious.

7 13. For example, at least 125 of them in their original form had file 8 attachments; none of the 4,186 alleged e-mails produced in the specially created 9 “Insuranceonly - Omni.mbx” and “Insuranceonly.mbx” files kept those 10 attachments. Further, based on a sampling of these alleged e-mails, over 40% of 11 the 4,186 alleged e-mails are missing message content, consisting of text and/or 12 graphics. In other words, approximately 40% of these e-mails are blank. Instead, 13 most of these “phantom” e-mails have graphics placeholders to show were 14 original message content would have once been. By removing the alleged 4,186 15 e-mails from their original mailbox containers of 52 users to create the two 16 specially created “Insuranceonly - Omni.mbx” and “Insuranceonly.mbx” files, 17 original e-mail message contents, or the links to the message content, were lost 18 for 40% of the e-mails. They cannot be reconstructed on the basis of the CD 19 provided to Defendants by Omni.

1 14. These two .mbx files are thus truncated versions of original files, to 2 the extent those can be said to exist. In addition, of the alleged 4,186 e-mails
3 alleged to have been “sent” directly to Omni’s users by Defendants, 575 of them
4 are in fact e-mails that were attachments to e-mails sent by Omni to itself, i.e. e-5 mails created automatically by anti-spam software installed by Omni on its own 6 server, warning the owner of that server that the attached intercepted e-mails
7 might be spam and, if so, steps could be taken to block others like it (steps Omni 8 did not take).

9 15. These 575 alleged e-mails also had the original subject lines altered 10 so that in each instance the subject line begins with “SPAM,” hardly 11 something a spammer would do, whether the possible spam e-mail is legal or fits 12 a definition that makes it illegal.

13 16. Finally, the same anti-spam software installed by OMNI on its 14 server, called “SpamAssassin,” added its own “header” text (the “header” 15 contains embedded text in an e-mail that purports to show its transmission 16 history, but it is easily forged or altered). This added text from SpamAssassin 17 would not have been in the 4,186 alleged e-mails in their original configuration.
18 In this case, the SpamAssassin software populated the header with lines that begin with "X-Spam" followed by a text with analysis that the software inserts. Ironically, of the 4,186 purported e-mails, the software labeled 3,103 as "X-Spam-Status: No," i.e., "not spam," and 578 as "possible spam." It was silent about the remaining 505 purported e-mails.

17. The "Insuranceonly - Omni.mbx" and "Insuranceonly.mbx" files are in fact compilations created from the e-mails of 52 unique e-mail recipients' mailboxes. And while the "Insuranceonly - Omni.mbx" and "Insuranceonly.mbx" files can be read in the Eudora e-mail application, based on my experience, it is highly unlikely that the 52 unique e-mail accounts apparent in those two specially created Eudora-like files had a Eudora origin. It is much more likely that these two files include e-mail text from e-mails generated in other, more popular and widely-used e-mail applications, such as Microsoft Exchange/Outlook, Yahoo Mail, MSN Hotmail or Google GMail. In moving the e-mails from other applications to these specially created Eudora files, the original metadata associated with the actual e-mail box owners was lost or altered, and are thus incomplete and unreliable evidence.

18. Other e-mails produced by Omni reveal text variations in the subject line where uniformity of text would be expected, especially if sent by

2 tampering or edits in a word processor, are the following:

7 19. Based on the foregoing, not only are the 4,186 proffered e-mails not 8 original e-mails, they are not even complete. Based on the evidence supplied by 9 Omni and in my professional opinion, none of the 4,186 alleged e-mails
10 produced by Omni to Defendants was sent by the Defendants.
